Some Remarks about Fall Bulbs

EALL BULBS include those which are set out in the fall, left all winter, to flower in the spring. These are commonly Tulips, Hyacinths, Narcissi (Daffodils), Crocuses, Muscari, etc., and we will say a few things about them that may be helpful, mentioning the different kinds in approximately the order of their blooming.

GALANTHUS (Snowdrops). These often bloom while snow is still on the ground. They do well in sun or semi-shade and will add much to vour rock garden. Plant 2 inches deep and 3 to 4 inches apart.

GALANTHUS

CROCUSES. These may be set out right in your lawn, in small clusters. They bloom very early, and should be set about 2 inches deep. They like partial shade but don't insist upon it. The lawnmower may be used without hurting the crocuses if their foliage has died down. They will bloom each year for several years.

CHIONODOXA

CAMPANULATA

CHIONODOXA. These bloom the same time as Crocuses, with showy blue flowers. Fine for rock gardens. Plant 3 inches deep and 3 inches apart.

SCILLA, Siberica blossoms early. Campanulata later. Plant Siberica 3 inches deep and 3 inches apart, Campanulata the same depth but 6 inches apart. Siherica looks best planted in masses.

MUSCARI

HYACINTHS. Outdoors, plant exhibition size bulbs 6 to 7 inches deep and 8 inches apart: bedding size 6 inches deep and 6 inches apart. Indoors, one exhibition size bulb in a 5 or 6 inch pot.

HYACINTHS

NARCISSI or DAFFODILS. Let's not go into the question of which is a Narcissus and which a Daffodil, because common usage and scientific correctness differ. Call them what you will, they are at their best when set out in groups of a dozen or more, and they are frequently used for naturalizing. Plant the bulbs as early as possible in the fall, 4 to 8 inches deep and 6 to 10 inches apart. Paperwhites are for indoor culture only, and are usually grown in a deepish dish filled with pebbles and water. Keep them in the dark until plenty of roots have developed, then move to a light cool room. Of the outdoor types, the Trumpets have the longest trumpets, as long as or longer than the perianth petals. Those with medium length trumpets include the Barrii and Incomparabilis types. Those with short cups or crowns include Poeticus and Poetaz, the latter growing clusters of blossoms. Then there are the Doubles, such as Von Sion, with double blossoms.

TULIPS. The unbeatables of the spring-flowering bulbs. Tulips are divided into several groups whose names are sometimes difficult to explain. The sketches shown are of typical flowers.

TULIP CULTURE. Tulips should be planted any time in the fall before the ground freezes, avoiding locations where Tulips have been grown during the two previous seasons, unless you are planting Botanical Tulips. Also avoid the use of fresh manure at planting time. Plant the Bulbs about 5 inches deep and from 5 to 8 inches apart, to suit your taste, but bearing in mind that they always look best when massed. For best results, you should dig them up after the foliage has died down, store the bulbs in a cool dry place, and reset them in the fall. Many people leave them in the ground indefinitely, in which case they produce poorer flowers each year and finally die out completely.

DOUBLE EARLY

DOUBLE EARLIES. Blooming about the same time as the Single Earlies, these have double blossoms that resemble peonies. The stems are not very tall.

DOUBLE LATE. Similar to Double Early, but later blooming, TRIUMPHS. These deserve a lot more popularity, but are a fairly new group and not yet very well known. They bloom a week ahead of the Darwins and right after the Earlies, and include some gorgeous colors with tall, sturdy stems. Try some. "Kansas" is a perfect white Tulip.

DARWINS. The "old stand-bys," medium late with tall, sturdy stems and a full range of colors. You really should try some of the newer ones instead of continuing with the old varieties.

DARWIN

COTTAGES. These are also called May-Flowering, but the Darwins and Breeders bloom in May, too, Their stems aren't quite as sturdy as Darwins' or Triumphs', but are tall enough for anybody. The colors are largely vellows and whites with some reds and oranges. If you like a delicate lemon-vellow, grow "Mother's Day."

BREEDER

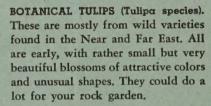

LILY-FLOWERING. These probably should be classed as Cottages, but their blossoms have a distinctive shape. The petals flare outward from a rather tight base, somewhat like a lilv.

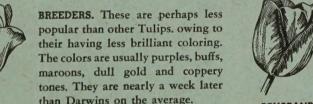

LILY-FLOWERING

BOTANICAL

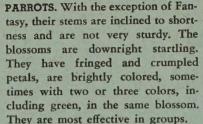

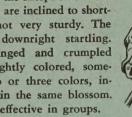

REMBRANDT

REMBRANDTS. These resemble Darwins, but the blossoms are striped and splashed with a second color. We offer only one variety this year. These Tulips are called Rembrandts because they are the kind he usually showed in his paintings.

All of the Bulbs we list (except Paperwhites) are Holland Grown and packed especially for us. It pays to plant the best. Be sure yours comes from
